Using personal stories, photographs and objects from the collection, this exhibition will focus on the many and varied independent retailers that operated in the town during this period. From small, specialist companies such as Lavinia's dress shop and Southorn boot makers, to the large department stores Woodward's and Burgis & Colbourne that came to dominate the Parade.

Find out how people were lured into the shops. Learn the skills needed to work in a grocers. Discover how long it took to train as a draper.

With fun interactives, dressing up, and the chance to see the neon sign from Toytown on display for the first time, there will be something for everyone to enjoy. Explore further by visiting the Shopping in Leamington Spa virtual trail on Historypin.

NEW ACQUISITIONS

NOÉMIE GOUDAL

The Contemporary Art Society has acquired Satellite II by Noémie Goudal (b.1984, Paris, France) for Leamington Spa Art Gallery & Museum.

Noémie Goudal's work is inspired by removed and isolated places. She constructs fictional photographic landscapes. The resulting works exist in a state between illusion and reality, with ambiguity to where they truly belong. This work will be displayed in the main gallery to coincide with the opening of the Camouflage exhibition (22 July – 16 October 2016). The University of Warwick Art Collection have acquired the related artwork in the series Satellite I.
